MONDAY, September 28, 1772.

Messieurs EDES & GILL,

Cambridge, September 18, 1772.

WE, in the Country, who are generally Readers of your Gazette, which may be justly called a Scourge to Tyrants and Bigots, both in Church and State, were very much disappointed by your not putting into our Hands last Monday, A Rod of Birch for Mather Byles's Breech. It would have been below the Dignity of your Paper to have given him any other Discipline than that, which is proper for one not as yet arrived to that maturity of Understanding and Discretion which are common to full grown men. It has been thought strange, that the Convention of Episcopal Clergymen should select a Runagate, remarkable for nothing but childish conceit, ill-nature, impudence and folly, to be their Monitor from the sacred Desk. If any Dependance may be placed upon what we have heard reported, they, in common with many others, both Churchmen and Presbyterians, were highly displeased with the railing Harangue he delivered the Wednesday before last, in their Hearing, at Christ's-Church in Boston, with a Face of Brass. As I happen to have by me an authentic Account of the Conference between this fame Mather Byles and the CONGREGATIONAL People of his Charge at New-London, in Connecticut, previous to his breaking away from them, I shall hand to you a few Extracts from it to be published in your next Paper; and the rather, as they will serve to counter-balance the many false, impudent, uncharitable and saucy Reflections he injuriously cast, in his Convention-Sermon, upon the Churches in this Land, their original Founders and present Pastors, not to mention his so affronting his own Father, as to drive him out of the Church, or his meanly suggesting to the Governor's Presence, and to his own Face, that, in Order to qualify himself for his Post, he could receive the Sacrament kneeling.——— But I shall no longer detain the Public from the above-mentioned Extracts. They are these,

Minister.

Dearly beloved brethren in the Lord JESUS CHRIST.

I HAVE desired you to meet me in this place, to advise with, &c. There has been various reports spread abroad, some are true, others are premature: What has been transacted in the affair of my leaving you, is contained in some letters which I shall communicate to you: but before I proceed, it is necessary to let you know that 'twas not my own seeking, nor any of my friends, that I know of, but a meer act of providence; take notice of that, the hand of providence. I will now communicate to you a letter I received from the wardens and vestry of the north church, in Boston, dated 8th of March,—" We being empowered to seek for and find " a person for our minister—we understand that you " are inclined to think favourable of our communion, " and that you are every way qualified for our minister " —desire an answer, &c." The following is my answer, " Gentlemen, Nothing could give me more " surprize than yours of the 8th inst. how you became " acquainted with my particular sentiments with regard " to the church of England, I am at a loss to determine: But, upon the closest and most critical examination, I frankly confess that for several years past, I have had, and still have the highest esteem for that venerable church. And when I consider that the offer you have made, gives me as fair an opportunity to serve the common cause of christianity, it would be ingratitude in me not to acknowledge that I am in some measure influenc'd. What will be the event, I know not; however, this you may depend on, that when your answer is more explicit, my reply shall be speedy and decisive."—And since that, have received a line from brother Walter, wherein he advises me, " This day at a meeting of the wardens and vestry " of the north church in Boston,—they have come to a " determination of sending for you to Boston, &c.— " your passage to London,—expence of moving yourself " and family,—a house provided, &c.—all at their expence." And now, my dear brethren, consider this call of providence, in such a mysterious manner, &c.—I have called you together to advise with, &c.—you pray treat me with all the love and tenderness imaginable, &c.

People, We understood you desired us to meet you in this place, as you had something of importance to communicate to this church. We are so surprized, and so astonished, we know not what answer to make—it's very extraordinary that you did not give us timely notice, as it's above a month since the date of the above; and now you say, you have called us together to advise with, &c. and have already determined to go, &c.!—What possibility of excuse? What objections can you make? What are your reasons?

Minister. I have no particular objection to this church, but believe it to be a true church of our Lord, &c.—but this mysterious call of providence, &c.—the churches of this and Old England are equal to me. I am call'd from one to another where I can be of more usefulness, which is my duty—And I believe you had better dismiss me, as you may get one that will do much better.—You want one that will visit his parishioners—preach a lecture once in a while—I was not made for a country minister—I am weak and infirm—to come up this tedious hill all weather—come in all out of breath—obliged to preach till all in a sweat—then go out in the cold, on this bleak place, run the risque of my health, &c.——And then to be treated as I have been by the Quakers—disturbed upon the holy Sabbath. If I have not the Sabbath, what have I? 'tis the sweetest enjoyment of my whole life!—Insulted by them almost continually, surrounding my house. Many a time has this bell toll'd for hours together, and at last one single man condescends to come down and drive them off. I would not live such a life over again, for no consideration—I see no prospect of amendment—our laws are not put in full execution. (And then he went on to shew wherein the civil authority, in his opinion, were deficient in duty, with regard to the quakers, &c.)——My salary is not sufficient, &c.—My friends are in Boston, &c.

People, These objections are nothing to the purpose, and what you say about the quakers, is a mere cobweb. ——As to the call of providence, it plainly appears to be many——Conscience! with what conscience can you leave this church of Christ?—(They then set forth the obligation he was under to walk with this church; the connection between them were of a sacred nature, &c.)

Minister, I did not settle on Say-Brook platform; and you may remember that you were a mind for the Cambridge, but I told you I tho't it a weak performance, and that if you had ever read it, you would never have mentioned it.—My father when he gave me my ordination charge says, " we doin the name of the Lord, thus " solemnly ordain and separate you, to the work of the " gospel ministry in general, and near pastor of this " church in particular." Mind, in general, my father put in that word on purpose.

People, What, did your father put in that word on purpose to deceive us? (No answer).

But pray was your father the contracting party?——We have no business to enter into these things now. We must take another course———You must apply to the society for dismission, &c.

(There was some intimation of having recourse to the law, to recover his settlement, &c.)

Minister, Or I will give up my settlement!

People, Will that make us good? That's not the thing——We are left destitute,—Know not what to do for another.

Minister, There is ministers enough to be had.

People, Yes, such as you are.——Your salary is not sufficient, you say, Why then did you not apply to the society for more? Did you ever ask them for any thing they did not immediately comply with?

(He gave no satisfactory answer, but confessed the love and value that he had for this church; and that he was in perfect charity with all the New-England churches.) Why then should you leave this church? if there's no essential difference?

Minister, I prefer the church of England;—her government, discipline, &c.—There is no separations—all united, &c. and I do most earnestly wish, from the bottom of my soul, we were all united to the church of England; where government would be kept up: We should see no divisions, sub-divisions, &c.

People, You profess yourself then a churchman in heart?

Minister, Yes.

People, How long have you been of these principles?

Minister, Between two and three years past.

People, How came on the first dawn of them principles?

Minister, I have read many volumes, and the tenor of pages on each side the controversy, and am fully persuaded that it is the true, and only regular church.

People, Is not this a true church of Christ? Min. Yes.

People, How then have you changed your principles?

Minister, Only in regard to the order, discipline, and ceremonies.

People, Three years past, you say, you have been a churchman in heart; If you was persuaded conscientiously, so long ago, why did not you inform us, that we might have had an opportunity to discuss the point fairly? Perhaps we might have found sufficient arguments to have convinced and established you in your former opinion; or perhaps you might have convinced us of that being the only true church.

Minister, I don't say but that this is also a true church.

People, How then have you changed your opinion?

Minister, Only in regard to the decent and part; there is not a sermon that I have preached in this place, but what I shall in the church of England?

People, How will you do in regard to one wherein you say, "'Its 364 chances to one whether christmas be kept upon the right day?"

Minister, No modern churchman insists upon it, &c.

People, Why did you not declare off before now?

Minister, Because I had not a call till now.

People, And so if there was no vacancy, of larger salary that offered, in all probability you would have dissembled much longer, &c.—then its only for the £200 salary that we now have this declaration.

Minister, No brethren, its not money, 'tis conscience, 'tis the call of providence, this mysterious call, &c. I don't know that the salary will be more than £-75 ster. per ann.

People, Don't you look upon yourself a minister of our Lord Jesus Christ? Minister, Yes.

People, How then can you renounce your former ordination? Minister, We do not.

People, Is not your ordination good?

Minister, Yes.

People, How then can you be re-ordain'd?

Minister, Well enough.

People, When you was baptized into the name, &c. can you with a clear conscience be rebaptized?

Minister, No.

People, We look upon it something similar.

(In setting forth the covenant he made with this church, the perfect harmony subsisting between them &c. the love they had for him, the obligation he was under to abide with them, &c. and then appealing to him, Can you leave this church of our Lord Jesus Christ?

Minister, Yes, I can with a clear conscience leave this church, in the sight of God and man.

People, Was you a true minister of Christ when you first came here? Minister, Yes.

People, And did not you know of all these objections that you have now made? Why did you not consider of all these things before now? This tedious hill—the quakers—your friends being in Boston—the smallness of your salary, &c. did not you know of all these things before you was ordained and settled here, &c. —When you was married, you expected to live here—you expected children—and now to say your family is increased—you can't live.

Minister, I was but a young spark, about 22 years old, and did not consider of these things.

People, We never could conceive nor imagine how you could spend your time before now, for you never visited any of your parishioners, but very seldom——seldom preached a new sermon; but old sermons over and over, again and again: and behold all this while you have been studying controversies, about modes and forms, rites and ceremonies? Is it for this we have been paying you these three years past, when you should have been about your ministry; and when your Father gave you such a charge at your ordination, That you should be studying the good of soul:—Studying the Scriptures impartially and diligently, watching over and praying for your flock,—"How often watch while others "sleep, and his solitary candle burn, when the midnight darkness covers the windows of the neighbourhood." In regard to the quakers insulting of you, &c. Is any man wholly free from persecution? If that is all you have, you ought to be very thankful that you have no more than a few poor old women, setting round your gate.—Are we not as much or more persecuted than you are, &c.?

Minister, If we are persecuted in one city, flee to another.

Jeffrey, 81—101. Vol. 2

To Thomas Hutchinson, Esq;

SIR,

WE have long been waiting for a redress of those grievances, which no freeman ought to endure for a moment, and which necessarily subject our lives, liberties and properties to the caprice of the worst and vilest of our species; and instead of receiving the least encouragement, that our humble petitions and just remonstrances have met with a favorable regard, we are alarmed with certain advice that the last hand is put to the distruction of our free constitution, in rendering the supreme arbiters of our lives and fortunes the absolute dependents of our avowed enemy. The first instinct of the human mind therefore impels us to advertize you, that unless prevented by an immediate recession from the measures which have so nearly completed our ruin, we shall look upon ourselves obliged to recur for relief to that law, which needs none of the glosses and convenient accommodations of corrupt mercenaries, to prepare it for execution. The continued seizure of our properties and conversion of them to the support of our despoilers, the imposition of the edicts of the servant of a foreign state to the absolute controul of our whole legislative, and the enforcement of these by a military power, the wresting out of our hands the sole fortress of our Province and committing it to the custody of our murderers, the manifest partiality shewn to those murderers in the trial they underwent for that bloody act, to the infamous Richardson on the one hand, and the hardly comparable Pierpoint on the other: These examples, Sir, we esteem quite sufficient to blacken the annals of the present Century, and are at length come to a determination to be no longer passive to the ruin of one individual after another, singled out to grace the triumphs of despotism. But in case we must perish, to fall in company with the glorious satisfaction of involving our destroyers in the common ruin.

We request you to lay this paper before your Council in preference to the trifling essay in the Spy, that they as well as yourself may know the minds of the PEOPLE.

From the Public Ledger of July 23,

THERE is an old and a very true saying, that A man may always be known by his Company; and there is a certain rule, that a man in power may be known by the general cast of the people who have his confidence, and receive his favours. Let speculative men, for a moment, turn their eyes to Lord Hillsborough's Department of America, and there view his favourite creatures, from the confidential Prime Minister, Sir Francis Bernard, down even to Robinson, or Franklin, the Deputy Governor, or Halifax, Shopkeeper, and let them declare what they impartially think of them, whether they do not precisely shew what their Patron is generally thought to be.

But however that is, must not all the world acknowledge that the Minister, who, on the most important occasions, could slight the sentiments and opinions of such men as Sir Jeffery Amherst, General Monckton, and Governor Carleton, in American affairs (in which with real knowledge, they could have no bias to that Country, or interest in deceiving) and listen to either the low-lived and self interested, the delusive and time-serving, the deceitful and flattering voice of a Bernard, an Hutchinson, or a Paxton, however strongly he might be urged to it by Townshend; and Barrington is much fitter for the superintendance of a little manufactory in the north of Ireland, than at the most critical period to have the management of a vast, extensive, populous Country, nay more, a budding Empire, which from wretched Mismanagement in every respect, is almost weaned from this its jaundiced, paralytic, & much deceived parent Kingdom.

BRITANNIA.

LONDON,

July 22. The true reason which induced Lord Hillsborough to oppose, with such vehemence, the new colonization scheme, was because his Lordship had reason to apprehend, that a multiplicity of his tenants and others, serviceable to his Irish estates, intended to emigrate to the Ohio or the Mississippi. His Lordship's rents were a few years since raised prodigiously beyond what the land would afford; this hath also been the case with several other Gentlemen's estates in Ireland, the labouring people, therefore, have embarked from that kingdom in great numbers; and should the Ohio or Mississippi scheme take place, they would easily be persuaded to quit a country, tho' their native one, where extortion prevented their procuring the necessary sustenance for themselves and families. This will serve as a clue to unravel Lord Hillsborough's motives in opposing the new colonization scheme; and it will also shew, that with him, as well as his colleagues in office, Self, and not their Country, is the object they have at heart.

July 24. A large Vessel, unknown, but supposed to be the Jenny, Moffat, from Boston, New-England, to Hull, ran on shore on the rocks of Scilly, in a violent storm on the 28th ult. The ship was dashed to pieces and every one drowned.

BOSTON, September 28.

In Capt. Adams came Passengers, Duncan Stewart, Esq; Collector of his Majesty's Customs at New-London, and Thomas Palmer, Esq; of this Town, who has been from hence several Years, in which Time he has made the Tower of Europe.

Capt. Higginson and Capt. Calef were to sail for this Place soon after Capt. Adams.

Arrived at London. The Dolly, Carneau, Union, Pease, the Mortlech, Jones, the Neptune, Delano, from Boston, Hagman & Kelchingham, from New-England, Shand, Gilbert, and Sheldon, from Rhode-Island, Chounefrom Halifax. At Liverpool. Morth from Boston, Colvill and Rogers from New-York, Cain from Philadelphia. At Falmouth, The Harriot Packet, Oak from New-York. Capt. Hall and Capt. Lyde from this Place, were also arrived in London.

It is reported that the following Salaries are appointed from Home, viz. The first Justice of the Superior Court of this Province, 400l. Sterling, the other four Justices 200l. each, a Year.—The Attorney General 150l. a Year; and the Solicitor-General 50. a Year.

And, that John Phillips, Esq; late Captain of His Majesty's Castle William, is appointed Fort-Major of that Fortress, with a salary of 100l. Sterl. a Year.

It is said that Lord Harcourt is to be Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

It is likewise said, That the Earl of Hillsborough had resigned as Secretary of State for the American Department, on Account of the Settlement of a Government at Ohio; and that Lord Dartmouth succeeds him in that Department.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, August 1, 1772.

"I am very sorry to acquaint you that your G—t has carried unaccountably the Salaries of the Judges to be paid independent of the People, which all the World besides must have fail'd in. The Arguments made use of by that Gentleman of the Interest & Safety of the Crown Affairs there, and the Well-being of Government in general, were the great Objects that prevail'd."

Extract of a Letter dated London July 23, 1772, to a ——— Gentleman here.

"The Instructions of your Town cannot be sufficiently admired. They shew a Strength of Argument, a determin'd Spirit, and just Principles, which must forever do you Honour.—I rejoice to see that your new Assembly is firm. You have nothing to trust to but Perseverance, and that must assuredly triumph at last."

Tuesday last being the Anniversary of his Majesty's Coronation, at One o'clock the Guns at Castle William and Batteries in this Town, also on board his Majesty's Ships of War in the Harbour, were fired on the Occasion.

The same Day the Boston Regiment of Militia, under Col. Erving, with the Artillery Company and Grenadier Company, had their fourth Training for this Year.

His Excellency the Governor, accompanied with several of his Majesty's Council, viewed the Regiment when formed on the Common, after which they marched into King-street; where the Royal Salute was fired by the Artillery, and three Vollies by the Battalion.

The Regiment made the best Appearance and performed the best ever known of any Militia: Besides the Companies of Artillery and Grenadiers being in their Uniform, the other Companies appeared dressed as near alike as possible, and had their Arms and Accoutrements in very good Order: The several Officers of each Company give great Encouragement to their Men to appear in a proper Manner, and take Pains to learn them the Use of Arms.

The Field-Officer and the Officers of the several Militia Companies dined at the Bunch of Grapes: And the Officers and Company of Artillery dined at the British Coffee-House, after performing several excellent Firings.

His Excellency's Company of Cadets, Commanded by the Honorable Colonel Hancock, appeared under Arms on the Common, and after performing their Exercises, were reviewed by his Excellency the Governor, the Officers paying their Salutes: At Noon they marched into King-street, and fired three Vollies. And when the Regiment was dismissed the Company went through many military Manœuvres, in the Presence of his Excellency the Governor and his Majesty's Council, who were in the Balcony of the Town-House: Their Exercises, Firings and Evolutions were performed in a regular Manner that did great Honour to the Officers and Privates, and were well-pleasing to the Spectators. In the Afternoon the Company again exercised on the Common. In the Evening the Officers and Company supped at the Bunch of Grapes Tavern, from whence they displayed a Variety of Fire-Works.

There was a vast Concourse of People of all Ranks to see the Performances of the several Companies in the Day, both in the Common and King-Street, and in the Evening to see the Fire-Works.

Upon the whole the Anniversary was celebrated with the greatest Demonstrations of Loyalty and Joy.

(Sundry Pieces of Speculation, coming out of Season, we are obliged to defer 'till our next.)

Messieurs EDES & GILL,

IN your Gazette of the 20th of February last, I took occasion to deliver my sentiments on the imprisonment of Ebenezer Richardson. A truth I then delivered, give me leave to repeat—"NO TYRANNY so secure, none so INTOLLERABLE, none so DANGEROUS, none so REMEDILESS, as that of EXECUTIVE COURTS."

——This is a truth all nations bear witness to, all history confirms. And so sensible are all tyrants of the importance of such courts to advance and establish their system of oppression, they never rest 'till they have compleatly corrupted or BOUGHT THE JUDGES OF THE LAND. I could easily show that the most deep-laid and daring attacks upon the rights of a people might in some measure be defeated or evaded by upright judicatories:—that bad laws with good judges make little progress. "Let me make the judges," said the Pedant King James, "I care not who makes the laws"; and this was very far from being the worst speech of that vain-glorious monarch.—How would the silly tyrant have hugg'd himself in fancied bliss, if he had been gratified with making laws, judges, lawyers, sheriffs, &c. and then to have PAID and displaced them ALL AT PLEASURE? Could a Nero wish more? The people then would have no more real life, than might be extinguished with one single stroke.——

My countrymen, Great-Britain with legislative solemnity has told you, she can bind you and yours by her laws, when the parliament pleases:—the parliament have so bound, and are still so binding you:—Who appoints—who displaces our judges, we all know; but who pays them? THE LAST VESSELS from England tell us, THE JUDGES AND THE SUBALTERNS HAVE GOT SALARIES FROM——GREAT-BRITAIN! Is it possible this last movement should not rouse us—and drive us—not to desperation—but to OUR DUTY!

Let us consider what has been done in the Green-tree—We may form some judgment what will be done in the dry. Richardson's Case we all know.—Capt. Preston is called to his trial; TALES MEN are wanted. Stephen Greenleaf, Esq; is to return them. Accidentally suitable Persons are at hand. They are returned. Mankind know them, their sentiments, their political conduct, their engagements in extensive trade—their usual attention to it, and to scarce any thing else.) However, they urge no objection—they are, and Preston is acquitted.—Pierpont and Davis are to be tried.—A TALESMAN is wanted.—Chandler returns two from Hardwick. The Judges sum up the case. Pierpont is ordered to pay £. 15 and Costs——(2)

These and a multitude of other like facts, which all the world ought properly to resent, need no comment: the blind may see—the callous must feel:—the spirited will act.

Surely we may think as freely, as the Reviewers write, who are under the Nose of Lord Mansfield.—Leaving wise and good men to comment and apply their words, I close with their Expressions in the review of December last. "It is not to be accounted surprising in an age, when virtue is, in some measure, a reproach, and men of high Quality are only noted for debauchery, THAT JUDGES should dispossess themselves of every appearance of integrity, and assume the boldest and most unwarrantable latitude in the interpretation of the Laws."

CALLISTHENES.

N. B. The judges of England have salaries independant of Crown and people, with commissions during good Behaviour: if the reverse of this was true, according to the account of the reviewers, it is very certain, they would soon be——incarnate.——Awake my countrymen! Arise—consider——AND ACT LIKE MEN!
